Description and History

A federal US Department of Agriculture block grant provides commodities/funding to food and nutrition programs such as school breakfast, national school lunch, special milk, child and adult care food programs, summer food services, education and training, and emergency food assistance.

Distribution of USDA commodities makes products more affordable than if purchased through commercial channels. Department of Defense fresh produce is made available to school districts to further utilize commodity dollars/entitlements.

The funding is used to reimburse approved sponsors for meals and milk served to eligible children in one or more of the child nutrition programs. Grantees include schools, childcare agencies, charitable organizations, private schools/camp, nonprofit organizations, charitable institutions for minors, nutrition programs for the elderly, assistance to needy persons and municipalities.
